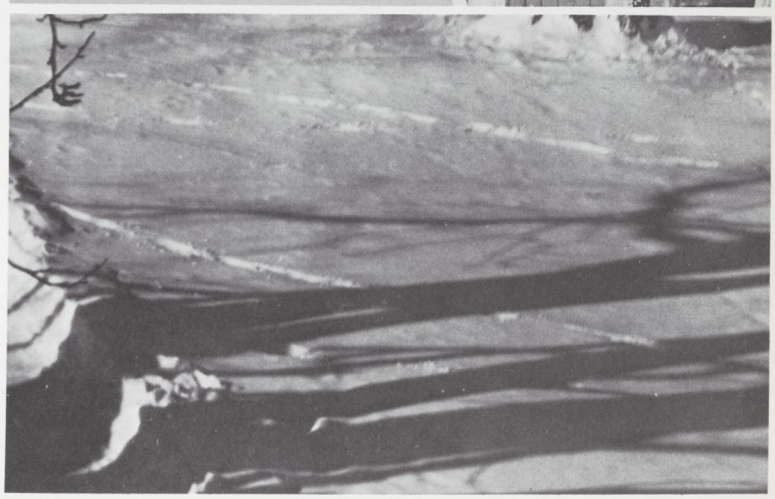
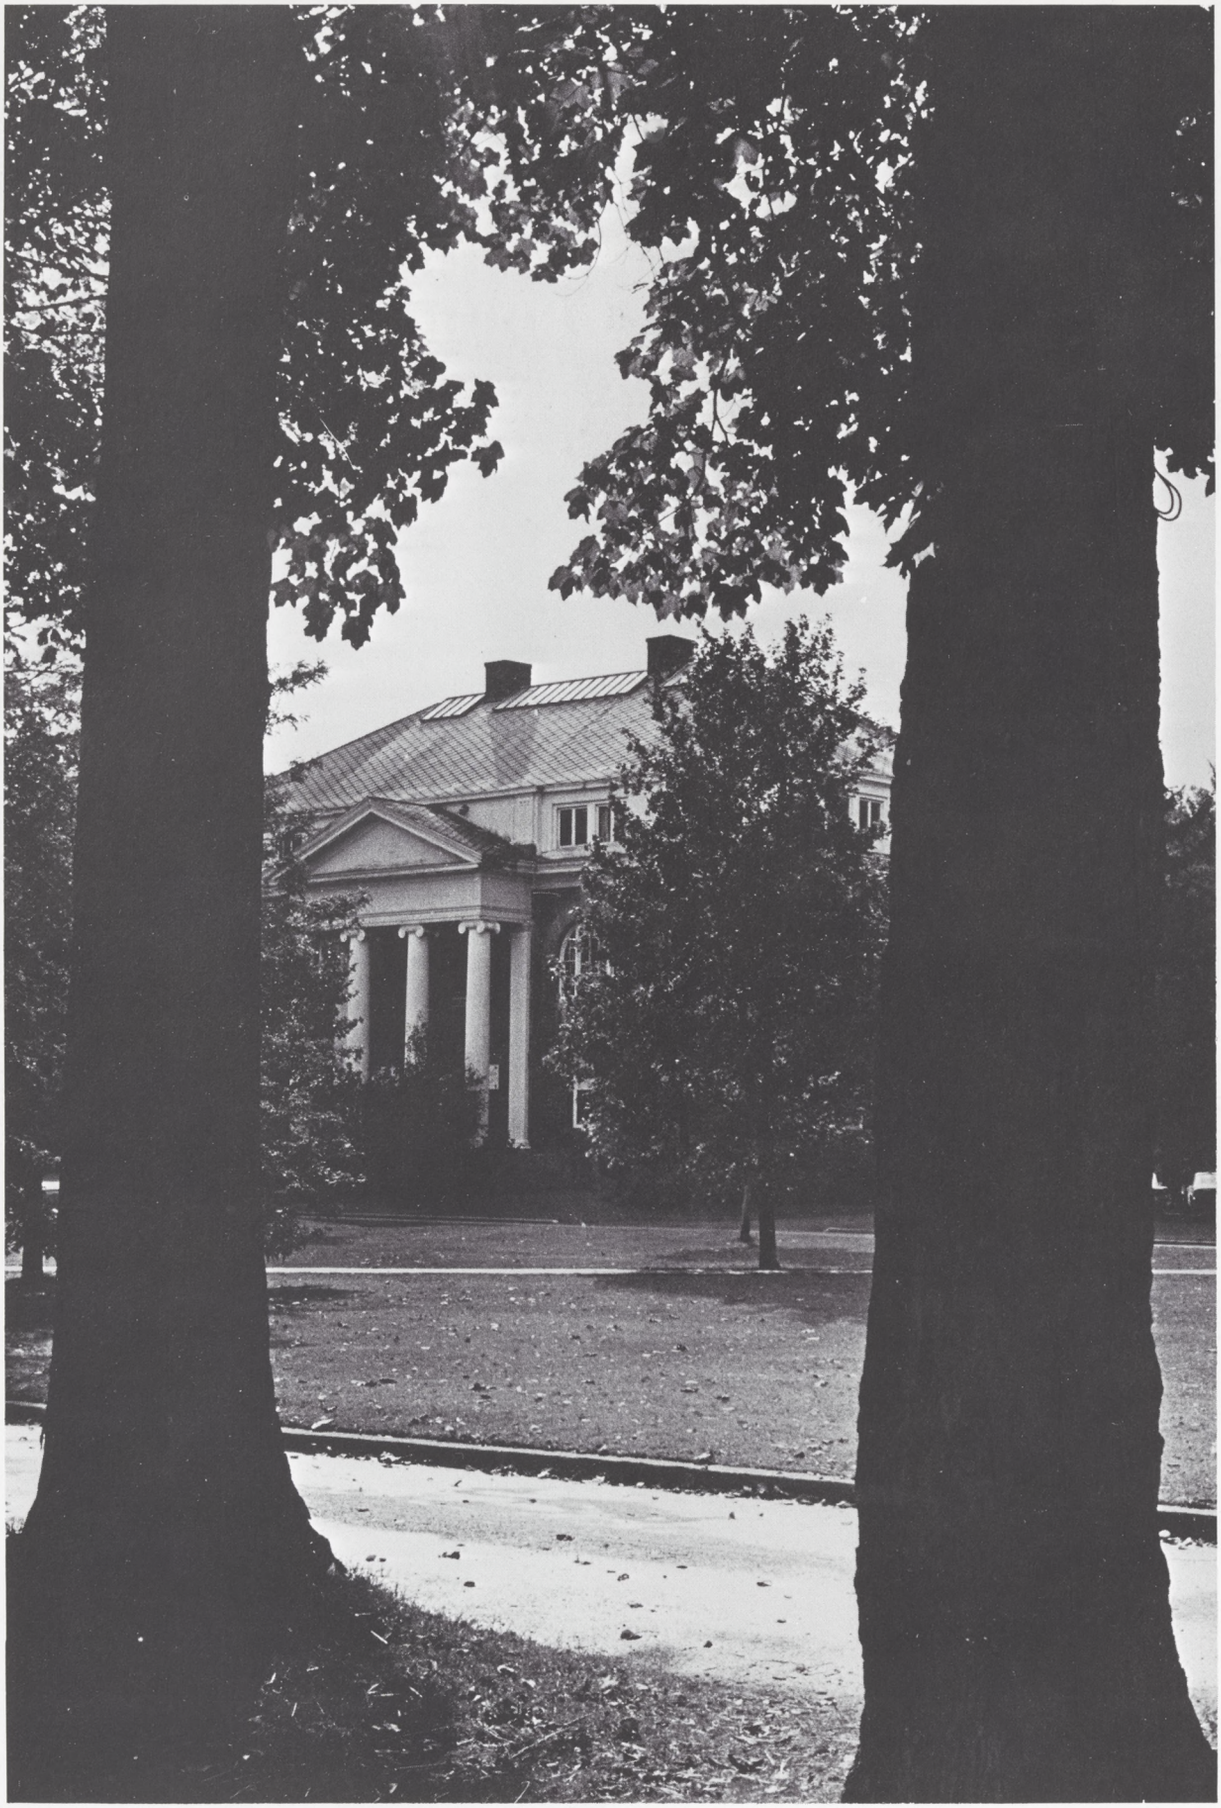
HAMILTONIAN





Foreword

The Convocation speech delivered by Acting President Couper captured the feeling of the year. It stressed activity, commitment, and a nexus between Hamilton and the real world. "Commitment and Leadership do not call for perpetual contemplation, but rather action with the certainty that in the crucible of activity mistakes are inevitable."

While a good deal of Hamilton-type atmosphere still existed, there was a new and serious and active dedication to causes of all sorts. Marcy State, Freedom School, and the Utical Tutorial Project continued, strengthened by this new commitment and interest. Athletic teams were much more successful than usual, and for once, someone cared. There were examples of negative leadership as well, the most dramatic being the resignation of the Spectator staff over a rooming squabble.

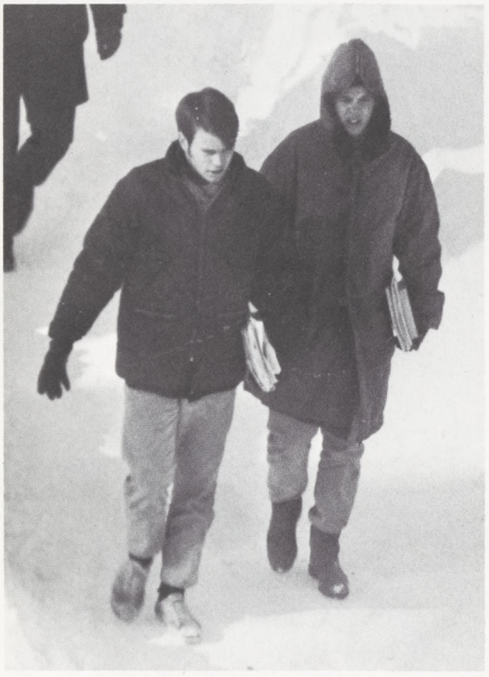
Kirkland College finally gave some tangible evidence of its existence—building started, faculty arrived, and prospective candidates were shown around the Hamilton campus.

Hamilton's new President was inaugurated. Dr. Chandler's speech in chapel suggested changes in calendar and course organization and load. There was applause. His Inaugural address, as well as the fraternity problem at Colgate, made many fraternity presidents and members step back and take another look at the system.

The Spectator's comment that "John Chandler represents the hope for a rapidly improved Hamilton" well expressed the feeling on this campus.

In Many Respects Hamilton Did N

The weather subjected us to its usual extremes, the pastoral spring and fall, and the brutal winter.



id Not Change

The main quad remained the center of activity, here, general conversation, some sun, departure of dates, some open drinks. Rick Petri and Stod Melhado prepare to fly a model airplane.

Hockey games provided entertainment, released tension, got us through the winter.

Tuesday morning chapel, often dull and routine, was enlivened by the outing club and the Swagel Mighty Art Players. Two productions shown here, the Academy Awards Presentation, and the opera Don Jones. Music for the opera included Carmen, Die Walkure: Dean DePuy was the subject of a third production entitled MacStretch.

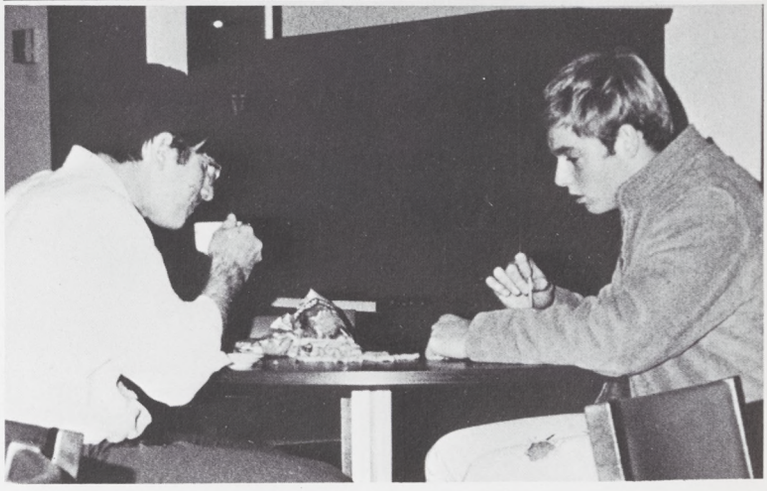
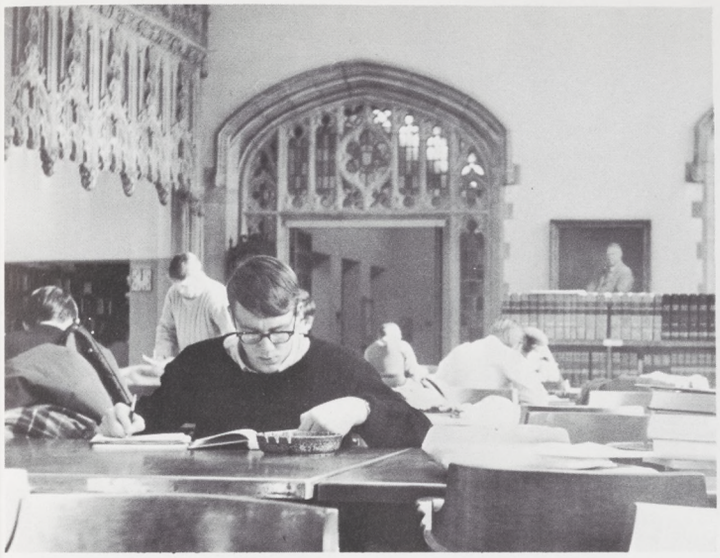
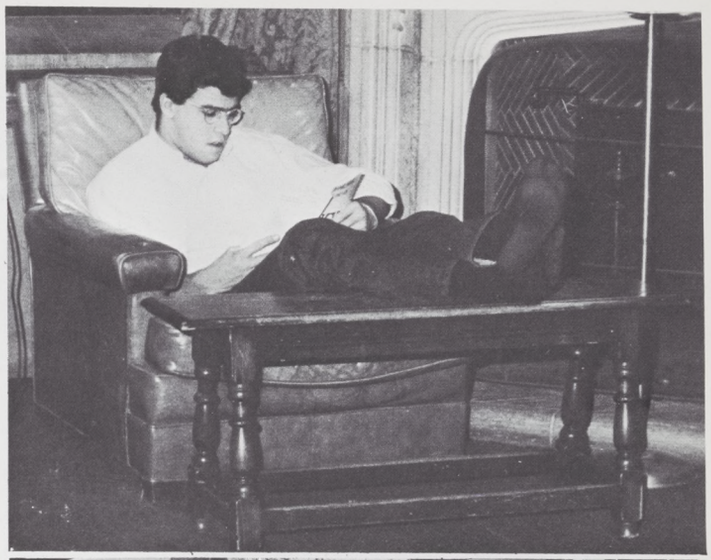
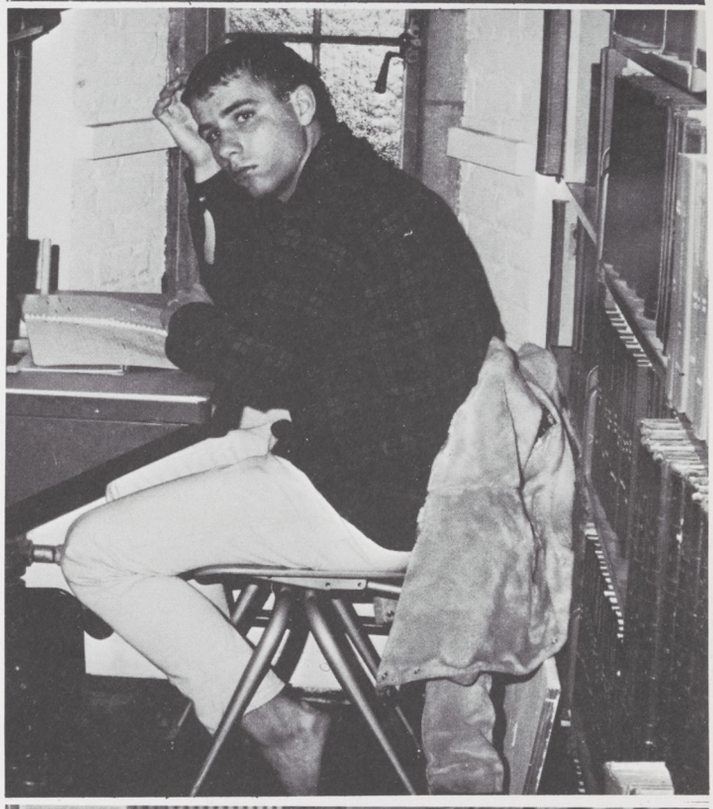
The snack bar of Bristol continued to provide a convenient place for conversation over a mediocre cup of coffee.

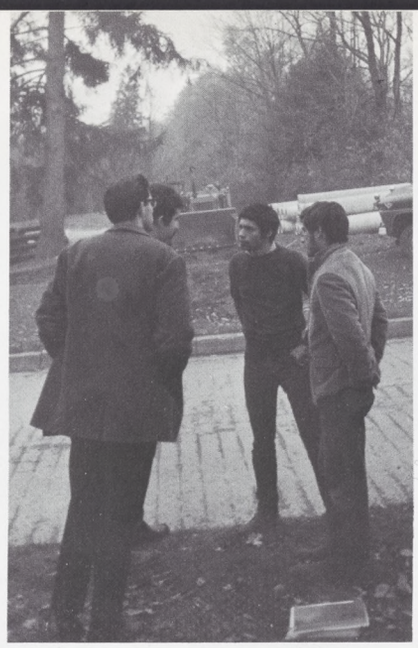




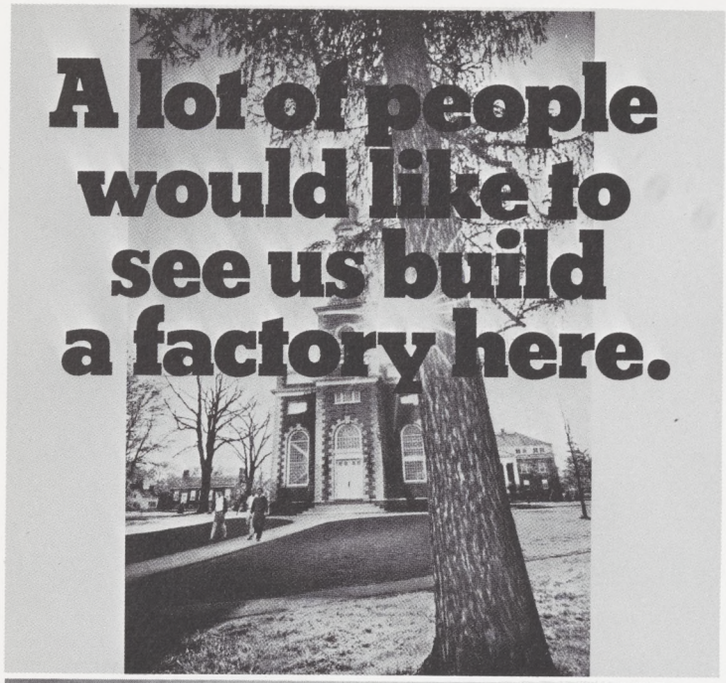


The library, center for research, study, closed reserve reading.





Student war sentiments clashed violently when a Marine recruiter appeared on campus last fall. Counterbalancing this physical act of prevention was a peaceful sit-in at President Chandler's office. Before they could disrupt Butterick's business, the students were invited in by the President to discuss their proposal that the Trustees officially ban all military recruiters from campus.



Public Relations: A new man and a new idea. Robert Hevenor, Robert Chaffee and the ad which appeared in Time.

When you send your daughter to college, will she get an education?

College was a lot of hard work. A lot of facts to memorize. A lot of notes to take. Quizzes to cram for. Papers to type. Neatness counts. Chem labs. Field trips. And finals... compare / contrast, succinctly, one or all: Hogarth and Swift, Talleyrand and Richelieu, Kierkegaard and Alfred Thayer Mahon... all this, three weeks before you got married.

Married.

Then you have children. Then life goes quickly. The children go away, as they should do, of course. But then what? Then what?

That is the problem.

For too many people, college is just something that happens between high school and marriage. You get your degree, but you don't get an education.

It doesn't have to be that way.

Kirkland College believes that something still exists called the joy of learning. This small women's college believes that learning is a mind-expanding experience—an experience that should continue and continue, after graduation.

When Kirkland College opens in September of 1968, it will be the first independent women's college in the East since 1926. It will be coordinate with Hamilton College, an excellent liberal arts men's college in Clinton, New York. Just across the road from Hamilton, Kirkland will be able to utilize the strengths of its 154-year-old neighbor and still be able to offer a distinct brand of education.

Because it is new and independent, Kirkland will be able to put contemporary educational ideas into practice.

There are no departments at Kirkland; rather, four core divisions: Humanities, Social Science, Science, and the Arts. One course may combine History, Literature, Philosophy and Art... just as life does. Other courses will offer specialized advance work in specific areas ranging from genetics to counterpoint theory. The development of Kirkland's curriculum is being assisted by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation.

Prospective applicants are being interviewed. Dormitories and academic buildings are under construction. And when Kirkland opens next September, 165 young women are going to be delighted.

Delighted to find that they are people, not numbers, as far as Kirkland is concerned—that most classes have only fourteen students. Kirkland will teach, guide and grade each student on what she can do, not on what the class is doing.

Delighted to find that they'll sometimes be going to a men's college—Hamilton College—but also delighted to find Kirkland believes that a woman ought to be alone when she wants to be alone. You might call Kirkland a coeducational women's college.

They'll be delighted to find that they can spend their senior year at another college and still get a degree from Kirkland. They can even leave college completely, if they have to, and graduate from Kirkland when they fulfill their requirements at home. Kirkland believes you don't necessarily have to be at college to get a college education.

In June of 1972, when the first class graduates, they'll be delighted to find that a lifelong process of education has begun.

A Dedication

To Richard W. Couper, as he assumes the perhaps less glorious and certainly less strenuous position of Provost and Vice President of the College, for having served as an example of commitment and leadership, for having kept Hamilton on an even keel during the sickness and after the death of former President Robert W. McEwen, for having kept Dr. McEwen's dream for Hamilton alive until a new President could take the responsibility, for, in fact, having done three jobs at the same time. A truly remarkable demonstration of dedication. Hamilton owes at least part of its success to his example of positive leadership, at least part of its appeal to the spirit embodied in his suggestion that "We live in hope . . . If you are diligent, search hard and fairly, you will find several people on this campus over thirty whom you can trust."

Leslie Peat, Assistant to the President.

The International Students Club of Hamilton College was founded in the fall of 1966 when a group of foreign students saw the need for an organization which could bring them closer together.

Its aims are to provide guidance to the arriving foreign students, and, as it is stated in its constitution, "to foster a better understanding between foreign students and the Hamilton College community." It is the hope of the present members of the I. S. C. that the organization will continue to grow and to contribute, with increasing efforts, toward world understanding.

The Utica Tutorial Project seeks to allow a select group of seventh and eighth graders from culturally deprived areas of Utica to go beyond their junior high school curriculum. During the past year, approximately thirty Hamilton students working on a one to one basis with students from Utica conducted projects in electricity, chemistry, biology, and auto mechanics. The tutors attempt to demonstrate that learning need not be dull and impersonal.

Gillmore Village is a low-rent housing development in South Utica which accommodates nearly two-hundred families. In February of this year, Hamilton students were asked by the director of the Opportunities Center in the village to establish a recreation program for children between the ages of six and sixteen, a program which would be held within the neighborhood on two nights each week.

With the assistance of Ronald Loomis Hamilton and Utica College students were able to set up this program, its major goals being to provide constructive activities for the children of Gillmore Village, and to help them develop a sense of identity and a feeling of belonging within the social framework of their community.

The Cerebral-Palsy Program

Hamiltonian

The art of producing and appreciating yearbooks is fast disappearing on the Hamilton Campus. I hope this edition will do nothing to speed that process. The only section with which I am displeased is that on activities, the service organizations. Neither words nor pictures can properly depict the importance of what is done there, and while I doubt that the members of these organizations require pictures in the yearbook as recognition, I had intended to give them more of a boost.

Special thanks must go to photography editor Phil Leavenworth for his untiring work; many of the candids in this book are his. Also to John Suplee whose faculty photos and endsheet are real works of art, and to Dan Kingsford, Bill Holmes, Charlie Woodward, Steve Knapp.

The cover is the work of Joe Kamuck; the business angle was entirely handled by Frank Townley.

The actual layout was finished for the deadline only with the dedicated help of Bill Holmes, Pete Loomis, and George Conner. Bill Muller, next year's editor, Ken Blume, Jim Brooks, Chris Sheutt and various girls from Skidmore also lent a needed hand as did the public relations office, who supplied us with some sorely needed photos.

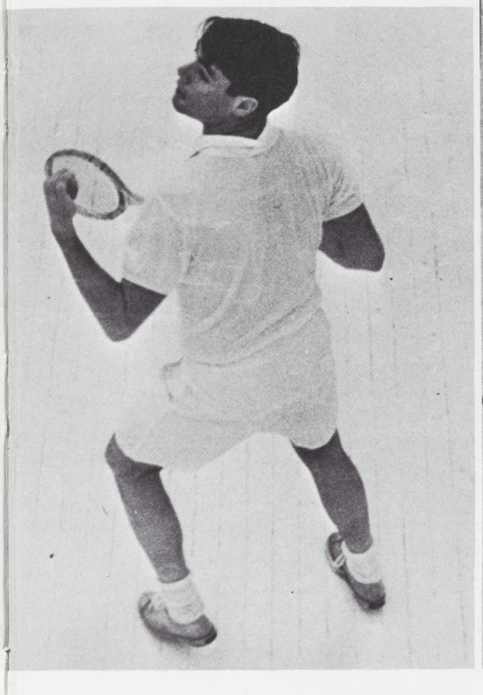
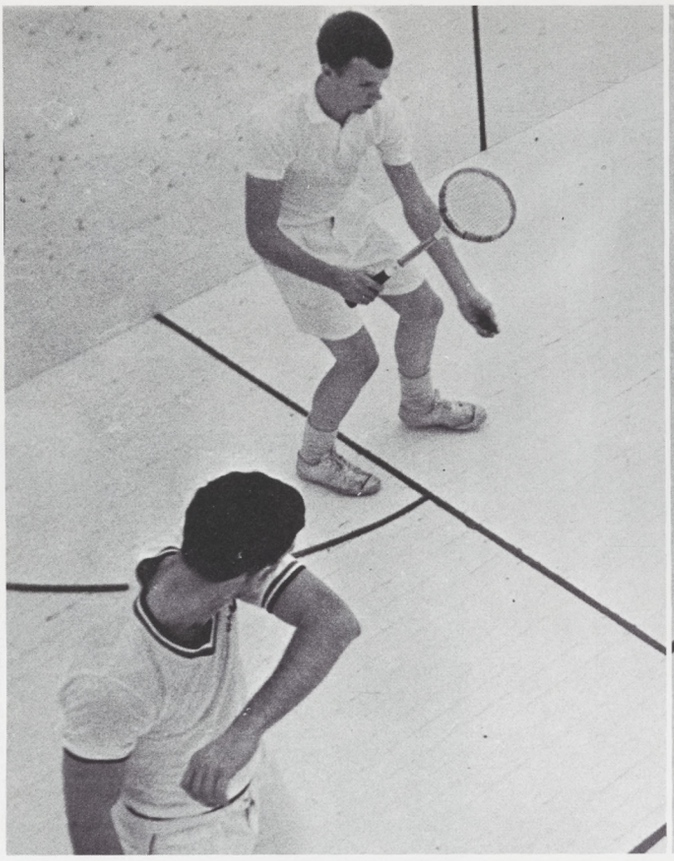
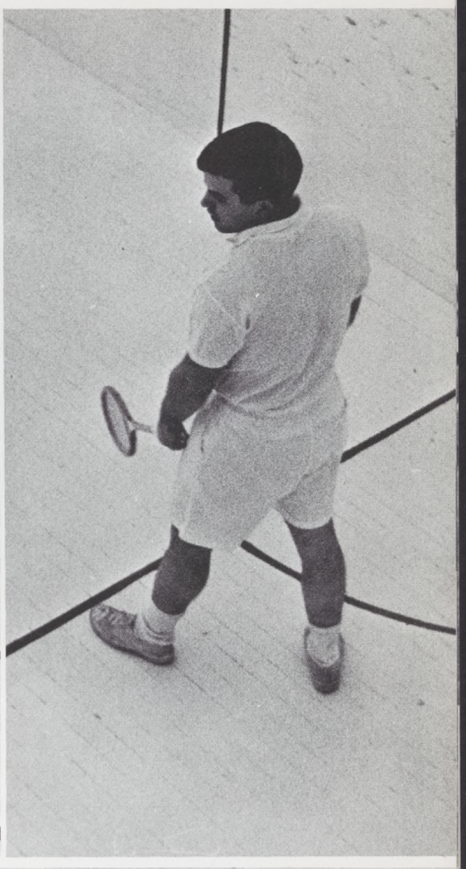
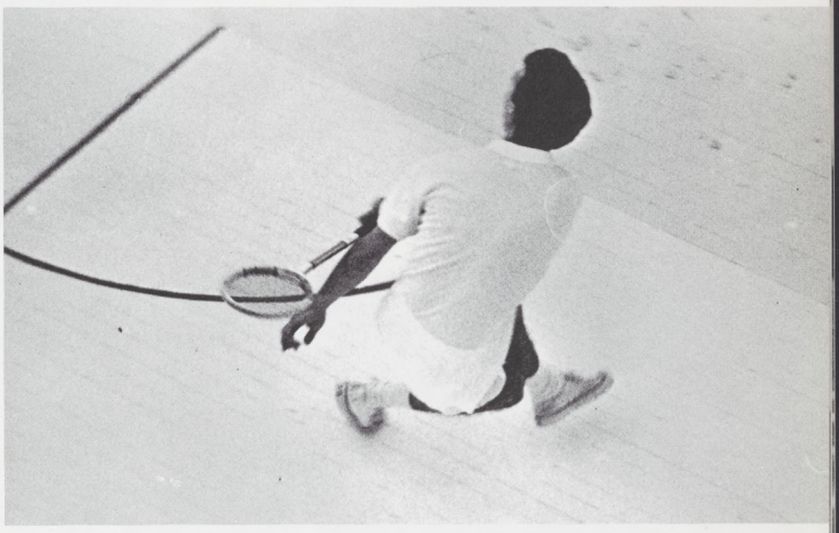
Squash









Since very few schools in the area play squash, the varsity schedule was limited to six matches, two apiece with Cornell, Rochester, and Hobart. Cornell was clearly above Hamilton's class, whitewashing the Blue 9-0 in Ithaca but encountering stiffer opposition on the Continental's courts before triumphing 7-2. Hobart, by contrast, caused Hamilton little problem with the exception of their number one man. The matches with Rochester were both close, hard-fought contests with greater depth tipping the balance in favor of the Yellowjackets on both occasions. Additional matches with club teams from Utica, Syracuse, and Cooperstown gave the Blue added experience and an overall winning record.

At the close of the season the team unanimously voted the newly-established George K. Sargent award for squash to Captain and number one player Bob Moses, whose efforts were instrumental in the accession of squash from a club to a varsity sport. Pete George and Chris Wheeler are other seniors whose presence will be sorely missed next year.

Much of the burden for rebuilding next year's squad will fall on the shoulders of captain-elect Bob Horn who held down the number two spot this year. With four of nine lettermen graduating from a team with a 2-4 record against varsity competition though, next year's outlook is less than bright.

Hockey

It was a successful year for Hamilton College hockey—both players and fans. The team finished in second place in the Division II playoffs and third place in the Second Division. Fans responded to this success with more than the usual enthusiasm; many traveled to the Colby and Merrimack games by car or plane. Both students and professors greeted the returning team at Oneida County airport.

Hamilton Christmas Tournament*
ECAC Division II Playoff*

It was a good team to watch. There were no outstanding players, just good ones who played better together than Hamilton College fans are prone to expect. Tom Wheeler did make the Division II first all-star team; both Peter and Kevin Kennedy made the second. But the championship team was produced by a willing and efficient combination of teamwork and skill under the dedicated leadership of Captain Bob Drummond.

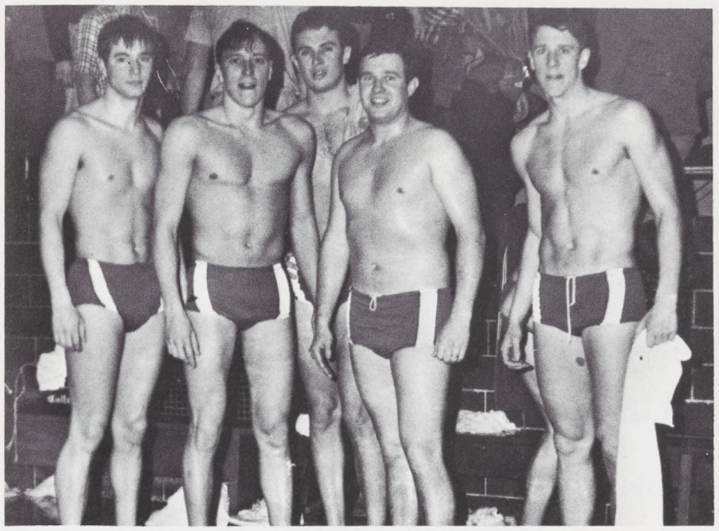
This was a very encouraging year for those of us who, as freshmen, watched the varsity lose every meet. The success of this team was due to the interest and inspiration of Coach MacDonald and a willing and able team headed by Bruce Mohl and Rick Volp.



Five members of the team competed in the NCAA College Division championships in Atlanta. They scored 42 points to place Hamilton 13 out of 84 teams. Bruce Mohl won the individual medley, breaking the meet record and qualifying for the University Division. He also placed third in the 200 yard I.M. and eighth in the 200 yard backstroke. Volp placed sixth in the 50 free, and also qualified for the University Division.

The 1967-1968 edition of the Continental Cagers was the highest scoring team in Hamilton history; averaging just under 90 points a game in compiling an 11-8 record.

Playing in a holiday tournament for the first time in a dozen years the out of shape Continentals lost to a strong Albany State team 105-87. After bouncing back to take Siena, the Blue lost the third game of the tournament in the last ten seconds to R.P.I.

Although it will lose Daub and Btooks, the Blue should have a strong team next year. The return of scorers McCuen, Voss, and Bankert combined with the strong ball playing of Barton and Grieco should provide a victorious team.
